2nd November 2026 – 15th November 2026

Hello and 'welcome' to SCVO's fortnightly 'Funding Digest'. As ever, you will find a snapshot of funding opportunities, large and small, to complement the other support services we offer. For those who might be new to the Digest, it is compiled by researching a variety of sources; unfortunately there is not time to research each item thoroughly and, therefore, the accuracy of the information provided cannot always be guaranteed.
All users of the Digest are encouraged to contact the funder or source of the information directly, using the web links or contact details provided.
Please also have a look at the Information Appendix to this Digest – we have collated a number of very useful resources to help you with your funding application,

Regular readers will know that a new edition appears every fortnight (Bank Holidays and staff resources permitting) but you don't have to wait for each edition – you can access funding information any time by signing up for our FREE funding portal. It only takes a minute and you will be able to search a national database detailing most UK funding opportunities, there is no cost – yes, it is really FREE – and the search facility has been updated to make things even easier.
www.scvo.info/local-vcs-intelligence/funding-portal/

In addition, users can contact the Development Team at SCVO (on 0121 525 1127 or by email at support@scvo.info to request assistance with identifying funders, making funding applications or planning your fundraising strategy. Indeed, you may like to consider our SCVO+ programme – where we provide consultancy support, on a chargeable basis, to help your organisation apply for funding.

Finally, SCVO, like many organisations that receive this digest, is a voluntary sector and charitable organisation that must report on outcomes and achievements to its funders and supporters. SCVO welcomes your feedback on the content, layout, and value of the digest and, in particular, would like to know if, as a result of this or any previous Digest, you have applied for funding OR you have been successful in raising funds or acquiring resources.

Please send all feedback to Ian at the contact details given below:

Allen Lane Foundation (UK) – Deadline: Quarterly

Grants are available to small, registered charities, voluntary groups, and charitable organisations in the UK for work that makes a difference to people's lives as opposed to simply alleviating the symptoms or current problems and should aim to reduce isolation, stigma and discrimination. The Foundation makes single grants or grants split over two or three years. One-off grants of between £500 and £15,000 are available; the average grant is between £5,000 and £6,000. Grants repeated for more than one year vary from around £500 per annum up to £5,000 per annum, for a maximum of three years.
Overall, the Foundation wishes to fund work which:

- Will make a lasting difference to people's lives rather than simply alleviating the symptoms or current problems,
- Is aimed at reducing isolation, stigma, and discrimination,
- Encourages or enables unpopular groups to share in the life of the whole community.

Small, registered charities, voluntary groups and charitable organisations in the UK can apply. Registered charities are eligible to apply as well as other organisations which are not charities, but which seek funding for a charitable project – this could include, for example, constituted voluntary groups or Community Interest Companies (CICs).

Priority groups (of adults) that the Foundation seeks to support includes:

- Asylum seekers and refugees (but not groups working with a single nationality),
- Gypsies and travelers,
- Migrant communities,
- Offenders and ex-offenders,
- Older people,
- People experiencing mental health problems,
- People experiencing violence and abuse,
- Young people (people aged approximately 12-21 from across a broader range of backgrounds).

The following types of activity are eligible for support:

- Provision of advice or information,
- Advocacy,
- Arts activities where the primary purpose is therapeutic or social,
- Befriending or mentoring,
- Mediation or conflict resolution,
- Practical work, such as gardening or recycling, which benefits both the provider and the recipient,
- Self-help groups,
- Social activities or drop-in centres,
- Strengthening the rights of particular groups and enabling their view and experiences to be heard by policymakers,
- Research and education aimed at changing public attitudes or policy,
- Work aimed at combating stigma or discrimination,
- Work developing practical alternatives to violence.

Grants may be used for start-up, core, or project costs, for example:

- Volunteers' or participants' expenses,
- Venue hire,
- Part-time or occasional staffing costs,
- Work aimed at strengthening the organisation such as trustee or staff training.

The Foundation is particularly interested in unusual, imaginative or pioneering projects which have perhaps not yet caught the public imagination.

To make sure its grants have an impact, the Foundation will not fund larger organisations. If an organisation works in a relatively small area – a village, estate, or small town – to be eligible it will have an income of less than about £100,000. An organisation which works across the whole of the UK will be eligible if it has an income of not more than about £250,000. Applications can be made at any time and are considered three times a year, generally in February, June, and October. Processing an application and making a grant usually takes between two and six months. Groups should apply as soon as they are ready as applications are processed all the time.

Wakeham Trust (UK) - Deadline: Rolling

The Trust has been established since 1975, their core goal is to help small groups of people who are getting together to make a difference in their communities, on the whole they do not support big or established charities. They are especially interested in helping groups that are starting up and need a little seed money to help to get them going.
They usually make very small grants to very small projects because they often find it hard to appeal to larger and more funding bodies. The only exception to this is that they have made occasional large grants to support excellence in teaching, especially in the humanities.
They continue to support the original objective of the Trust supporting projects that encourage community service by young people to their own neighbourhoods and communities.
These are the sort of issues they tend to look at when they decide what projects to back:

- Is it something new for the particular area – it does not matter if the idea is tried and tested in other parts of the country, if it is new for the community the Trust is interested in hearing about it,
- Is it small – they normally give grants where an initial £125 to £2,500 can make a real difference. In general, they look at what it is costing per head to reach the people the project is helping,
- Is it run by ordinary people, not professionals? – this is partly a function of size, once a project is big enough to employ staff it is probably too big for them,

- Will find it hard to get support elsewhere? – they try to help those projects that are too new to get support through established fund-raising channels, or which (if established) are under threat due to changes in national or local policy,
- Does it have the potential to become self-supporting – they like to see information that shows how the project will support itself in future years or over the course of its life,
- Is it outward looking rather than being focused on its own members? – they are especially keen to help groups who are usually considered recipients of voluntary action (for example old age pensioners, refugees, or young offenders) when these people become involved in helping the community,
- Does it have a UK charity number, or can it find a charity to accept funds on its behalf?

"Every Child Can" Initiative Announced to Widen Access to Enrichment Activities (England) – Deadline: Rolling

We are not involved in fund raising and rely upon income from our investments to make grants. Grants tend to be made in line with the founder's interests, which are principally causes benefitting children, the sick, elderly, needy and disabled. The Trustees aim to achieve a reasonable spread between Jewish charities (operating principally in the UK and Israel) and non-Jewish charities operating in the UK.

Due to the current circumstances we regret that we are, at present, only accepting applications from charities we have recently supported. New grants will be awarded for a one-year period. We will update the website when the situation changes.
